A Cause for Today...
A Cure for Tomorrow

July 21, 2014

Welcome to the Children's Cardiomyopathy Foundation's 12th Annual Golf Classic! Last year's outing raised more than $400,000 for cardiomyopathy research and education. I have no doubt that this year will be equally as successful, and I thank you for your generous support.

A few weeks ago, Eddie and I traveled to Somerset, N.J. to be recognized as a NJBIZ 2014 Health Care Heroes finalist. Every year, the business publication honors the efforts of individuals and organizations making a significant impact on the quality of health care in New Jersey. Imagine my surprise when the Children's Cardiomyopathy Foundation (CCF) was selected as the winner in the Educational Hero – Organization category from a group of established medical centers! I was humbled that CCF's work in health education was recognized by a panel of esteemed health care professionals. CCF may be a small organization, but we are making a big impact on the quality of care for children with cardiomyopathy.

This year we held our Third International Scientific Conference bringing together more than 60 top researchers and clinicians to exchange ideas and discuss research direction on cardiomyopathies in children. Progress in Pediatric Cardiology, a leading medical journal, will publish the conference proceedings in three dedicated issues.

Your support makes a great difference in what we can do, whether it is supporting research studies, developing educational materials or assisting families in need. Your involvement also helps us to be heard in Washington as we lobby for increased research funding and educational awareness programs.

I am grateful that you are a part of CCF and glad that you are joining us today. It is a wonderful day to celebrate CCF's achievements and continued work on behalf of all cardiomyopathy families worldwide.

Warm regards,

Sometimes having a big heart is not a good thing.

Cardiomyopathy is one of the most difficult heart conditions to treat in children.

- Nearly 40% of children with symptoms either die or need a new heart within two years of diagnosis.
- More than two-thirds of cases have no known cause.
- There is no cure that can stop the progression of the disease or repair the heart.
- It is the leading cause of sudden death and heart transplants in children under 18.

Every child with cardiomyopathy deserves a chance to live a full and active life.

The Children's Cardiomyopathy Foundation is dedicated to finding causes and cures for pediatric cardiomyopathy through the support of research, education, awareness and advocacy.

The Children's Cardiomyopathy Foundation (CCF) is a national non-profit dedicated to finding causes and cures for pediatric cardiomyopathy, a chronic heart disease that can lead to heart transplantation and sudden cardiac death in children.

CCF started in 2002 with one family's determination to call attention to this poorly understood disease and to take action on the lack of medical progress and public awareness. Since then, CCF has grown into a global community of families, physicians and scientists focused on improving diagnosis, treatment and quality of life for children with cardiomyopathy.

CCF has committed more than $2.3 million to research and treatment initiatives, established the first cardiomyopathy biologic specimen repository, and organized the first international scientific conference. As a result, more than 112 articles have been published in scientific and medical journals, providing important diagnosis and treatment guidelines to physicians.

Over the years, CCF has collaborated with the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute; American Heart Association; National Organization for Rare Diseases; and the National Society of Genetic Counselors to raise awareness of cardiomyopathy. More recently, CCF worked with Washington DC leaders to introduce two bills on cardiomyopathy in the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate.

CCF continues to be an invaluable lifeline to thousands of affected families worldwide, offering information, resources and guidance. Currently, CCF's educational materials are distributed at more than 70 hospitals in the U.S. and Canada.

The Foundation's hope for the future is that more lives will be saved, and every affected child will have a chance to live a full and active life.
